Project group C7 Political attention and the substance of legislative reform at the Collaborative Research Center 884 is seeking applications for four student assistants (30 hrs/month)

Job description

The project researches patterns of legislation in Germany and the Netherlands.

The project tasks are (a) collecting and systematizing the substance of legislation in Germany and the Netherlands and (b) coding legislative processes using the programming language R.

Applicants

- Students of political science, social science, communication science, or information science
- EITHER Good knowledge of quantitative methods in the social sciences/Experience with the programming language R
- OR Dutch language proficiency

We offer

- Direct contribution to an innovative research project
- Challenging research tasks
- Flexible work hours
- Great working environment in a good team

If you have questions about the position, please contact Prof. Thomas Gschwend (gschwend@uni-mannheim.de).

Please send your application (CV, current overview of grades) with the subject line “Bewerbung SFB 884, Projekt C7” until April 15, 2019 to gschwend@uni-mannheim.de.